I am retired from Texaco after 39 years as an electrical engineer.

I think you will find that if it was not for Bill Gates that the computer industry would be in shambles. Microsoft standardized computers and their operating system. If it were not for Microsoft there would be chaos in operating systems and no one would be able to walk up to a computer anywhere and operate it.

How does Bill Gates overcharge for his products? I was under the impression that in the USA you could charge anything you want to for your own products..............if folks don't want to buy it they don't have to. You can always go out and build your own operating system. Like Apple; like IBM. It is very simple as they found out.

For some reason I think the Justice Department is trying to destroy Microsoft so the Chinese can take over computers..........wonder why I think that?
